

THE RESERVE

HIDEAWAY RETREAT HOMES

BY Ratnaakar

Hello
Retreaters

To retreat, is not a far-fetched dream.

It may be a luxurious art form, a prized possession even,
but it is closer than you realise.

There are many different ways to transition into the ways of the retreaters. And it all begins with a patch of land.

The Reserve is a plotted development project, poised to redefine the way plots are identified, developed and maintained.

Generous boulevards,
manicured gardens,
community infrastructure,
and a luxurious clubhouse.

A space that can be designed and built for you, to accommodate everything
you want in a retreat home.

The WeekendFarmers

The green-thumbed retreaters. They are happy in concrete jungles, but long for a patch of land to nurture and harvest their desire to go back to nature. They want more square footage than an apartment balcony, and a piece of land that goes in hand with their city lifestyle.

To the WeekendFarmers, The Reserve is a farmhouse that promises a better quality of air and life, without it being high maintenance.

The WorkFromHomers

The everyday retreaters. They have been there, succeeded that. They want to bid goodbye to the daily office commute, and reward themselves with meaningful conversations, nourishing meals and the intangible gift of extra time.

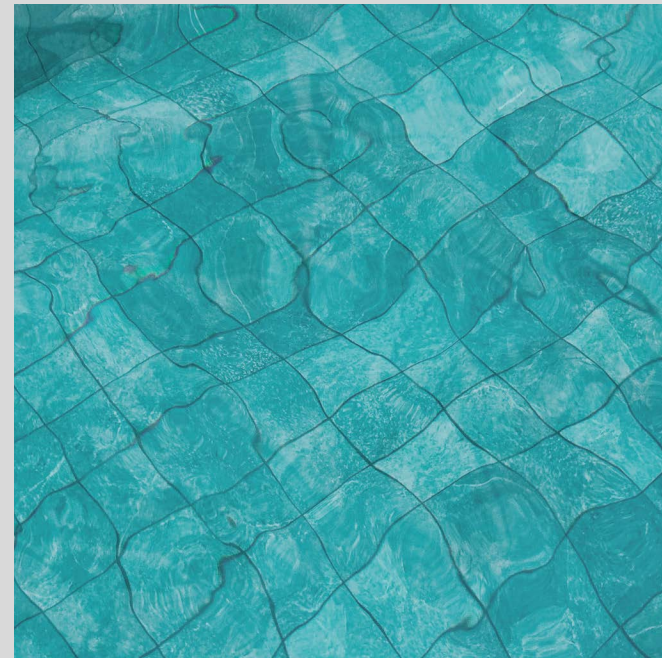

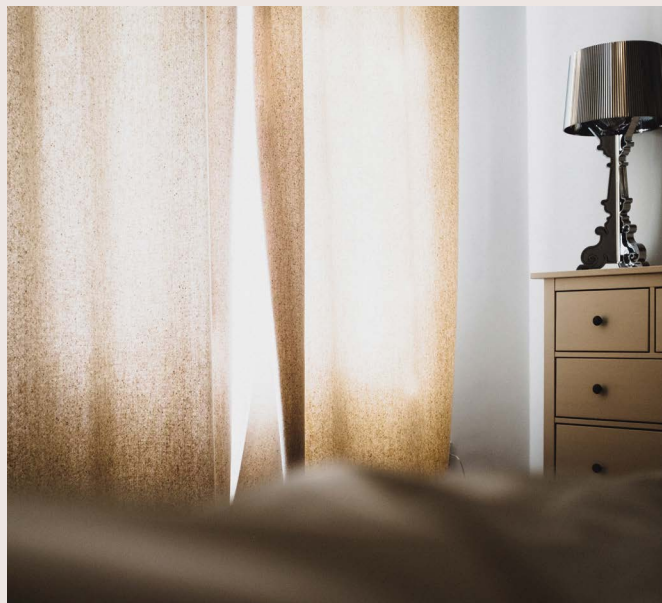

To the WorkFromHomers, The Reserve is a home office that enables the attainment of true work-life balance.

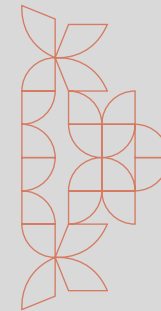

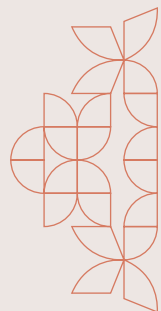

The Idlers

The purist retreaters. Without a care or an itinerary. No weekend projects. No holiday agendas. And definitely, no spillover from the office. During the week, they are successful in their own right. But come weekend, they disengage from the daily grind and indulge in the stillness.

To the Idlers, The Reserve is a sanctuary that allows the pursuit of real luxury. The art of doing nothing.

The FamJammers

The group retreaters. With them, it's always the more the merrier. A space entirely designed and constructed for the family, by the family. To honour family traditions, celebrate special occasions, and create memories they can pass on, generation to generation.

To the FamJammers, The Reserve is the family home that provides the warmth and fuzziness that mushrooms within a joint family, but in small doses.

The Staycationers

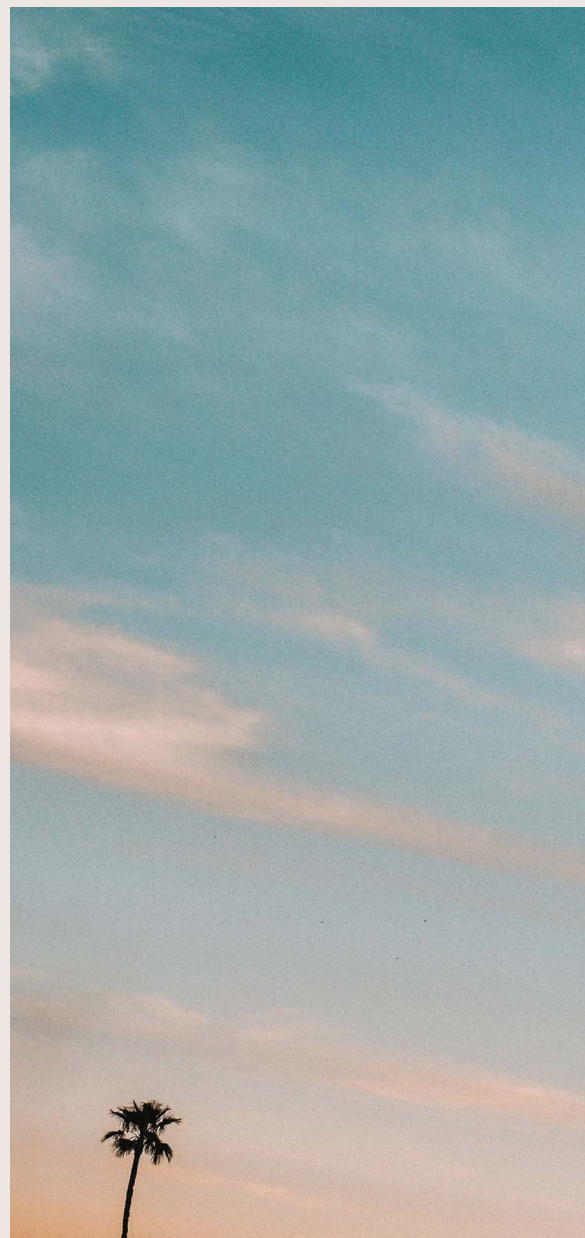

The baggage-free retreaters. Hectic lives call for capsule holidays. Something that's easily accessible without the stress of organising tickets or bookings. A long weekend or a mid-week break, a special occasion or a made-up holiday.

To the Staycationers,
The Reserve is the home-away-from-home that can accommodate a holiday in a moment's notice.

The CanHaveItAlls

The permanent retreaters who prefer the quiet over the city noise. They would rather be closer to nature than anything else. And fresh air is the luxuriest amenity.

To the CanHaveItAlls, The Reserve is their first home that allows them to turn everyday into a getaway.

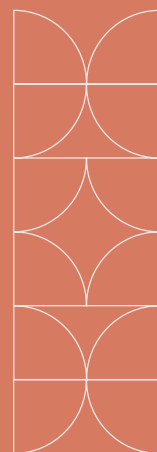

The Hosts

The entertaining retreaters. They are the life of every party, and love any excuse to throw one. Brunches to barbecues. Game nights to movie nights. Diwali parties to NYE celebrations.

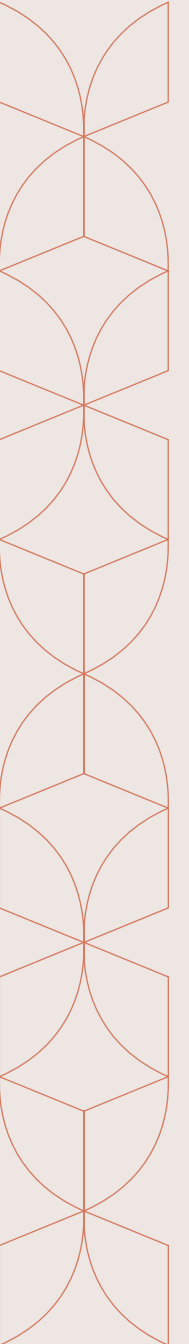

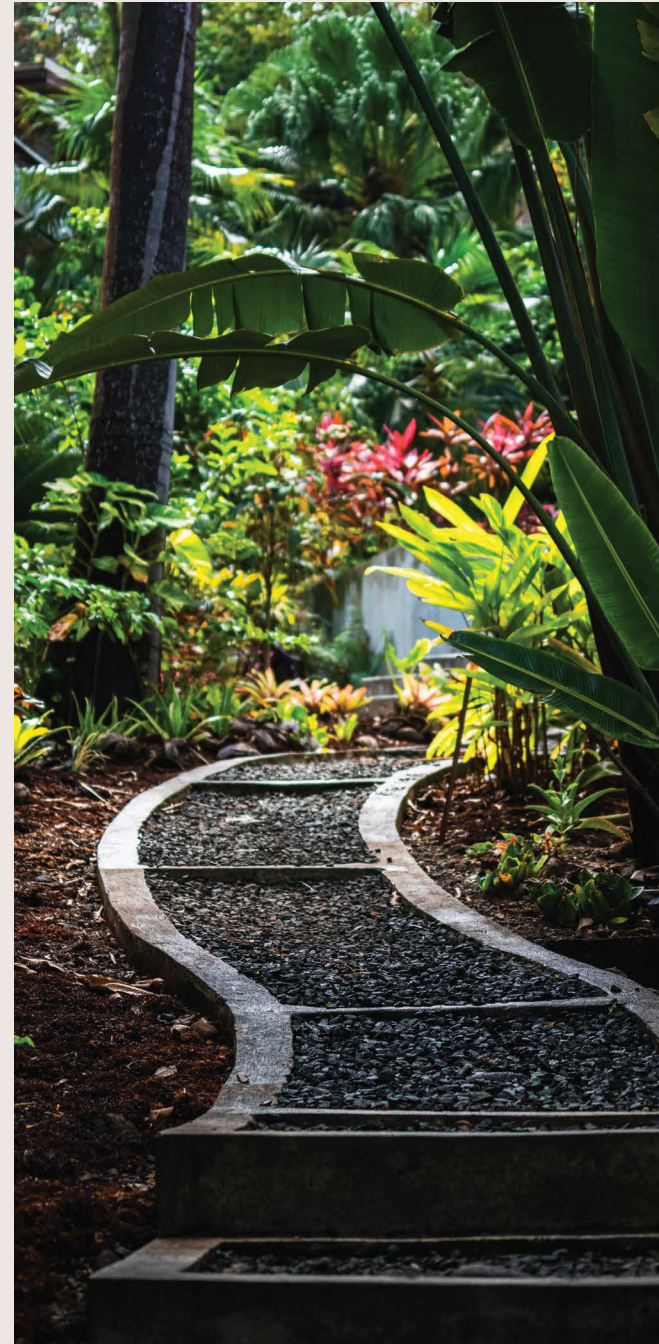

To the Hosts, The Reserve is a resort they can get away to, with friends who are family.

The TomorrowTravellers

The future retreaters. They are aspirational and have big dreams and five year plans. They know they are not there today, but it doesn't stop them from planning ahead to take every step necessary to manifest their dreams into reality.

To the TomorrowTravellers, The Reserve is an investment and a gift to their future selves.

Honouring a milestone, or starting a new tradition. A treat for a job well done or a hideaway to reset after a misstep. Much needed quiet time, or boisterous family time.

Spread across 60 acres, The Reserve has room for every retreat dream.
And then some.
